FEBA GEEVARGHESE

Prof. Dr. Feba Geevarghese stands as one of India's most respected academic leaders in nursing education, combining deep clinical grounding, scholarly excellence, and transformational institutional leadership. Currently serving as Principal cum Professor, St. Stephen's Hospital College of Nursing, and Associate Dean, University School of Medicine and Allied Health Sciences, Guru Gobind Singh Indraprastha University (GGSIPU), Delhi, she represents a generation of nurse leaders shaping the future of healthcare education on a global stage.

Her academic journey reflects exceptional rigor and commitment to excellence. Prof. Dr. Geevarghese holds a Ph.D. in Nursing from Jamia Hamdard University, an M.Sc. Nursing (Medical-Surgical Nursing) from R.A.K. College of Nursing, a Post-Basic B.Sc. Nursing from AIIMS, Delhi, and an MBA in Healthcare Services, bringing together clinical expertise and strategic healthcare management. A distinguished alumna of St. Stephen's Hospital School of Nursing, where she completed her GNM in 1998, she was honored with the Outstanding Student Award, a recognition that foreshadowed her exemplary professional path. Notably, she is a proud product of the very institution she now leads—an embodiment of its legacy and values.

With over 23 years of experience spanning clinical practice, teaching, research, and administration, Prof. Dr. Geevarghese has risen through every academic rank—Staff Nurse, Tutor, Assistant Professor, Vice Principal, Officiating Principal, to her current leadership role. Under her stewardship, St. Stephen's Hospital College of Nursing has achieved remarkable national distinction, earning Rank No. 1 in North India and Rank No. 2 nationally in the Indian Institutional Ranking Framework (IIRF), consistently maintained, and the "Best College of the Year 2025" award by Academic Insights Magazine.

Her academic leadership extends beyond institutional boundaries. She serves as Academic Coordinator for Nursing Programmes at GGSIP University, and as an Inspector for the Indian Nursing Council (INC) and Delhi Nursing Council (DNC), contributing directly to quality assurance and regulatory excellence in nursing education. A dedicated teacher and mentor, she has guided numerous undergraduate and postgraduate students, fostering evidence-based practice and ethical professionalism.

Prof. Dr. Geevarghese's scholarly contributions are extensive and impactful. She has published research in reputed national and international journals and presented her work at prestigious forums, including the International Council of Nurses (ICN) Congress, Montreal (2023). Her editorial and authorship roles include Editor of the 2nd South Asia Edition of Lewis' Medical-Surgical Nursing (Elsevier), Author & Editor of Operation Theatre Nursing, Co-author of the TNAI Nursing Foundation Textbook (2023), and Lead Editor and Project Head of "GNM Exam Essentials – A Question Bank with Smart Answer Guide."

An active member of professional bodies such as TNAI, CMAI, and the Nursing Research Society of India, she is a sought-after speaker and resource person at national and state-level conferences and workshops. Her core areas of expertise include nursing education and curriculum planning, clinical training, academic leadership, and research mentoring.

Grounded in the rich heritage of St. Stephen's Hospital College of Nursing—established in 1908—Prof. Dr. Feba Geevarghese continues to champion compassionate care, academic rigor, and global readiness. Her leadership not only preserves a century-old legacy but also propels Indian nursing education confidently into the international arena.
